Travis Jang-Busby counsels clients from notable startups to the Fortune 50 in employment, labor, and business law matters.

Travis strategically navigates high-stakes class action litigation in California and nationally, representative wage-hour litigation under the Private Attorneys General Act (“PAGA”), discrimination litigation, administrative investigations, and preventative counseling. He has varied and extensive experience in all phases of litigation and handles client matters from inception through trial.

Outside The Firm

Travis enjoys surfing, skiing, cooking, and “relaxing” with his three kids and two dogs.
