

Matthew L. McDermott Ph.D. | Patent Agent

Intellectual Property & Technology

1825 Eye Street NW
Washington, D.C. 20006
+1.202.420.2298

matthew.mcdermott@blankrome.com

Matthew L. McDermott concentrates his practice on a wide variety of intellectual property and technology issues.

Prior to joining Blank Rome, Matthew served as a scientific analyst intern at an American multinational law firm. He has notable experience assisting in patent prosecution through writing and reviewing applications, including introduction, specification, and claims.

Matthew also has extensive experience researching biomedical sciences. He studied autoimmune disease in kidneys while earning his undergraduate degree in chemistry at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill. He moved on to earn his PhD from the University of California, San Diego, researching molecular dependencies in pancreatic cancer.

Outside The Firm

Matthew enjoys traveling, watching college sports, and trying new types of food.

Admissions

- U.S. Patent and Trademark Office

Education

- University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, BS
- University of California at San Diego, PHD

