Stephanie M. Harden has extensive experience representing government contractors in a wide array of litigation and counseling matters and has been recognized as a Law360 Rising Star in the area of government contracts. Stephanie's experience includes:

- Bid Protests: Stephanie is a seasoned bid protest litigator, having litigated numerous protests before the Government Accountability Office (“GAO”), the U.S. Court of Federal Claims, and the Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit. Stephanie’s protest experience includes both protesting and defending agency award decisions in procurements of all sizes, including numerous multibillion-dollar procurements. Two of Stephanie’s significant protest wins are Lockheed Martin Corp. v. United States, 124 Fed. Cl. 709 (2016) (successfully defeating preliminary injunction alleging a range of protest allegations in major defense procurement) and AllWorld Language Consultants, Inc. (2016 CPD ¶ 12) (sustained protest of GSA Schedule contract award where putative awardee’s FSS contract did not meet solicitation requirements).
- Mandatory Disclosures: Stephanie assists clients in navigating the FAR’s Mandatory Disclosure Rule and other regulatory disclosure requirements.
- Cost and Pricing Matters: Stephanie regularly counsels clients on responding to government audits (including by DCAA, DCMA, and SIGAR), the submission of Requests for Equitable Adjustments and claims, defective pricing matters, and claims litigation before the Boards of Contract Appeals. Stephanie has helped clients recover millions of dollars of costs in these matters. Stephanie regularly speaks and writes on cost accounting and pricing issues and currently serves as a Co-Chair on the American Bar Association’s Accounting, Cost and Pricing Committee.

- False Claims Act (“FCA”) Litigation: Stephanie has extensive experience with FCA litigation, particularly cases involving complex government contracting principles.
- Internal Investigations/Compliance: Stephanie has counseled clients on compliance matters and internal investigations involving all manner of federal regulatory requirements, including small business regulations, the Service Contract Act, the FAR’s Combatting Trafficking in Persons (“CTIPs”) requirements, the Anti-Kickback Act, and gift and gratuity regulations.

Stephanie writes and speaks regularly about issues facing government contractors, including, most recently, the mandatory disclosure rule, CDA claims, and significant case law developments. In 2018, Stephanie co-authored the chapter “History and Development of Suspension and Debarment” in The Practitioner’s Guide to Suspension and Debarment, Fourth Edition (ABA Book Publishing, 2018).

Stephanie previously served as a law clerk to Judge Victor J. Wolski on the U.S. Court of Federal Claims in Washington, D.C. She also worked as a summer associate at the GAO. While in law school, she was an editor of the Harvard Journal on Legislation.
